

Know Your Church . . . Laity Formation

The icon of the feast, which is not found in Byzantine art, depicts in its upper part the Virgin Mary surrounded by a luminous aureole. She holds in her outstretched arms an orarion or veil, which symbolizes the protection of her intercession. To either side of her stand numerous saints and angels, many of whom are recognizable to the experienced church-goer: the apostles, John the Baptist, St. Nicholas of Myra, etc. Below, St. Andrew the Fool for Christ is depicted, pointing up at the Virgin Mary and turning to his disciple Epiphanius. Usually, the veil with which the Virgin protects mankind is small and held either in her outstretched hands or by two angels,^[4] though a version similar to the Western European Virgin of Mercy image, with a larger cloak covering people is found in some Eastern Orthodox icons. The Feast of the Intercession commemorates the miracle as a joyous revelation of the Theotokos' protection, which is spread over the world, and the Mother of God's great love for mankind. It is a religious holy day or feast day of the Byzantine Rite Eastern Orthodox Churches.

October 1 (in the Julian calendar) is also the feast of St. Romanus the Melodist, so he is often depicted on the same icon, even though he and St. Andrew lived at different times. He is often shown directly below the Virgin Mary, standing on a bema, or on a kathedra, chanting from a scroll.^[4] The scroll represents the various kontakia which have been attributed to him.

The feast day of St. Andrew, the Fool-for-Christ, falls on the following day, October 2

2 Corinthians 6:11-7:1

17th Sunday after Pentecost

Luke 7:11-16

Troparion (Tone 8)
You came down from on high, O Merciful One, and accepted three days for burial to free us from our sufferings. O Lord, our life and our resurrection, glory be to You.

Troparion of St. Thomas (Tone 2)
O disciple of Christ and member of the apostolic council, your lack of faith proclaimed Christ’s resurrection, and your touch confirmed His holy passion. O Thomas, worthy of all praise, pray even now that He grant us peace and great mercy.

Kondakion (Tone 8)
When You rose from the tomb, You also raised the dead and resurrected Adam. Eve exults in Your resurrection, and the ends of the world celebrate Your rising from the dead, O most merciful One.

Kondakion of St. Thomas (Tone 4)
Glory be to the Father and to the Son and to the Holy Spirit, now and for ever and ever. Amen. Filled with the grace of wisdom, Your apostle and genuine servant, O Christ, cried out to You in his charge of heart: You are my God and Lord.

Prokeimen
Pray and give praise to the Lord our God.
verse: In Judea God is known; His name is great in Israel.
Pray and give praise to the Lord our God.

Alleluia
Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia
Come, let us rejoice in the Lord; let us acclaim God our Savior.
Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia
Let us come before His countenance with praise and acclaim Him with psalms.
Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia

Communion Verse
Praise the Lord from the heavens; praise Him in the highest. Alleluia. (3)
