

Know Your Church . . . Laity Formation

At every Divine Liturgy, the deacon exclaims: “The Doors! The Doors! Wisdom. Be attentive.” This is the dismissal of the catechumens, originally the deacons guarded the doors of the church to prevent the entrance of unbelievers. Only baptized Christians are to participate in the Eucharistic Mystery. Today, the command to guard the doors is often taken metaphorically to mean guarding the entrance to our hearts, to “watch” and be prepared for the coming of the Son of Man, as in the parable of the wise and the foolish virgins. While the context of the parable is Christ’s Second Coming at the consummation of the world, it can also be interpreted as the Lord’s coming to us in the Eucharist. The cry, “The doors! The doors! Wisdom! Be attentive!”, can also be interpreted within the context of the recitation of the Creed. Nicholas Cabasilas in the fourteenth century wrote in his commentary on the Divine Liturgy: “Now the priest commands the congregation to proclaim that which they have learned and which they believe concerning God;...This wisdom (i.e., the Creed) is not known to the world, that is, the worldly wise, who can conceive of nothing greater or higher than the knowledge of material things, and cannot believe in the existence of a higher wisdom. It is in this wisdom that the priest asks us to open all the doors -- that is, our mouths and ears. Open the doors in this wisdom...proclaiming and listening to these high teachings constantly; not inattentively but eagerly, devoting all your minds to it.” After the cry, “The doors! The doors!”, the people begin reciting the Creed composed at the Council of Nicaea (325) and the one at Constantinople (381)

Joke of the Day

A bus full of ugly people had a head on collision with a truck. When they died, God granted all of them one wish. The first person said, "I want to be gorgeous." God snapped his fingers and it happened. The second person said the same thing and God did the same thing. This went on and on throughout the group. God noticed the last man in line was laughing hysterically.
By the time God got to the last ten people, the last man was laughing and rolling on the ground. When the man's turn came, he laughed and said,
"I wish they were all ugly again."
