Elements of the Liturgy

The Body in Worship Hearing

The chanting and singing of our services let us experience the worship of God in melody, rhythm, and harmony. They don't just provide us with information; they allow us to take part in the heavenly liturgy, like the angels who are constantly before the throne of God, singing, "Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of Hosts! Heaven and earth are full of his glory." Melodies and responses ebb and flow, and on some feasts several languages may be used. The bells of the deacon's censor, and the sound of church bells calling us to prayer or announcing a death or a feast day, become a part of the rhythm of our prayer. It can take a lifetime to come to appreciate all the levels of symbolism in the Byzantine liturgy, but some of them are quickly apparent to even a casual visitor to our services. And in delighting our senses of sight, hearing, taste, smell, and touch, they provide us with an experience of the divine which complements the message of our prayers and hymns.

Joke of the Day

Last week I took my children to a restaurant. My six-year-old son asked if he could say grace. As we bowed our heads he said, "God is good, God is great. Thank you for the food, and I would thank you even more if Mom gets us Ice Cream for dessert. And liberty and justice for all! Amen!" Along with the laughter from the other customers nearby, I heard a woman remark, "That's what's wrong with this country. Kids today don't even know how to pray. Asking God for Ice Cream! Why, I never!" Hearing this, my son burst into tears and asked me, "Did I do it wrong? Is God mad at me?" As I held him and assured him that he had done a terrific job and God was certainly not mad at him, an elderly gentleman approached the table. He winked at my son and said, "I happen to know that God thought that was a great prayer." "Really?" my son asked. "Cross my heart." Then in a theatrical whisper he added (indicating the woman whose remark had started this whole thing), "too bad she never asks God for Ice Cream. A little Ice Cream is good for the soul sometimes." Naturally, I bought my kid Ice Cream at the end of the meal. My son stared at his for a moment and then did something I will remember for the rest of my life. He picked up his Sundae and without a word walked over and placed it in front of the woman. With a big smile he told her, "Here, this is for you. Ice Cream is good for the soul sometimes and my soul is good already!"
